

Five Things You Can Do This Week

- Read about the IHI Open School's Southeast Regional Forum
- Watch a TED Talk on participatory care
- Take-or share-our faculty survey
- Join our social media community
- Read the Community news

Quick Links

- IHI Open School Website
- Online Courses
- Chapter Directory
- Start a Chapter
- Chapter Leader Toolkit
- Contact Us

Blog Post: Southeast Forum

University of South Carolina's Emily Ingram, Ryan Baker, Cassie Besten, and Duke University's Marisa Dowling describe the Second Annual IHI Open School Southeast Regional Forum in Greenville, SC, as "a fantastic experience." After taking away lessons on Chapter leadership and the importance of reporting errors, the Southeast Chapter members remembered the event as "a conference that would remind us once again of the big picture of why we are in medicine."

Read more on our blog.

TED Talk:
From God to Guide

Professor Bas Bloem, a neurologist in the Netherlands, encourages patients and doctors alike to demand "participatory health for all," creating a health care system centered on mutual respect.

When outlining the reasons to treat patients as active subjects, Bloem concludes that "engaging patients maintains quality of care and, at the same time, reduces the cost."

Watch now.

Faculty Survey: Share Your Feedback

The IHI Open School was established to advance the quality improvement and patient safety competencies of health care students and residents worldwide. We also strive to promote and support exemplary teaching, to facilitate the continued professional development of faculty as teachers, and to introduce new faculty to the culture of quality improvement and patient safety.

To that end, we would like your feedback to guide the direction of our efforts. By taking five minutes to respond to our survey, you will provide us with valuable insight into how to improve IHI Open School offerings for educators.

Build Your Network: Social Media

The IHI Open School has more than 80,000 students and residents registered and participating in 418 Chapters around the globe. Build your network effectively by connecting through our social media.

Like us on Facebook to access the most recent updates and connect with like-minded student and colleagues.

Follow us on Twitter to learn about the latest IHI Open School and health care news.

Read our blog to learn and connect with other Chapters and communities involved in quality improvement and patient safety.

Community Updates

Welcome, New Chapters

United States
University of Georgia, Georgia

International
Asir Primary Healthcare Sector of Saudi Ministry of Health, Saudi Arabia
Egyptian Ministry of Health, Egypt
Insituto Mexicano del Seguro Social, Mexico
South Central SHA, United Kingdom

Community News

Last week, the University of Colorado Anschutz Medical Campus hosted a successful Journal Club meeting, focusing dialogue on Atul Gawande's "The Cost Conundrum" and Don Berwick's address from the 2011 IHI National Forum, The Moral Test.

The IHI Journal Club, which was founded a year ago and is continuing to grow in popularity, has fostered continued success through a consistent evaluation process by attendees and inclusion of engaging local and national experts. Start your Chapter's Journal Club today!

Chapter Tip of the Week

Can you think of a reason to call 911 that starts with the letter T? What about a symptom of an illness that starts with the letter N? Play Scattergories with your Chapter and find out! This activity can serve as a fun way to engage your Chapter!