Student Storyboards at the National Forum

Storyboards are an integral part of the National Forum, providing an opportunity for students and residents to share their improvement projects and celebrate their Chapter successes with other Forum attendees.

Submit your storyboard proposal by Thursday, October 18th at 5 pm EST and receive formal recognition in the National Forum On-Site Guide, which is handed out to over 6,000 health professionals attending the National Forum. Please note, we will be accepting student storyboard proposals until Friday, November 16th; however those submitted after October 18th will not be included in the On-Site Guide. WIHI Recording: Navigating the Elections with a Clear-Eyed View

Last week, Dr. Don Berwick joined WIHI host Madge Kaplan and Chris Jennings, former Senior Health Care Advisor to President Bill Clinton, for a conversation about potential United States election outcomes and their individual impacts on health care. The broadcast drew over 800 participants and generated substantial feedback. Listen to the free recording of this WIHI on your own or at your next Chapter meeting.

TEDMED Seeks Input on Great Challenges in Health & Medicine

TEDMED is working to bring more attention and deeper understanding to the Great Challenges of Health and Medicine -- which are defined as persistent problems that have medical and non-medical causes, impact millions of lives, and affect the well-being of all of America. TEDMED community members are encouraged to add their voices and unique points of view to the 20 Great Challenges and engage in real-time, multi-disciplinary dialog with all members of the TEDMED community, including experts in their related fields.

Current Challenge: Addressing Whole Patient Care. How can we better treat the whole patient rather than the disease? Engage in the conversation.

Join 1000 Lives Plus in their Person-Centered Care Campaign

The Student Chapter of the 1000 Lives Plus Campaign in Wales, UK is encouraging you to start thinking about making small improvements in patient care by listening, sharing, and educating. They've launched a Patient-Centered Care competition which will bring a select number of health professions students from Wales to the International Forum co-sponsored by IHI and the BMJ Publishing Group in London on April 16-19, 2013. To enter, participate in one patient-centered activity, such as sharing a patient story or implementing an improvement project in your organization, and report back to the Chapter. Winners will be announced in January 2013.

And it's not just students from Wales who benefit from the competition; just by completing a patient-centered activity and providing feedback to the Chapter, you'll receive a certificate for use in your CV or portfolio.
